Madison, Oct. 7.—Col. O. G. Munson, Governor Davidson's private secretary, is back from his trip down the Mississippi with President Roosevelt and party. He joined the party with Governor Davidson at Keokuk, Iowa, and went with them as far as Memphis.
For Third Term.
As far as Colonel Munson can see President Roosevelt's trip down the Mississippi has been one triumphant march and all the delegates to the waterways convention at Memphis could talk about was his running for a third term for president.
No Way Out.
Mr. Munson said: "I do not see how he can get out of running for a third term. Nearly all the people who attended the Waterway convention want him for a third term and the call will be most general throughout the entire country."

FIGURES OF CAR MEN SHOW PROSPERITY

Wages of Union Men Have Been Increased Five Million Dollars in Two Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Orleans, La., Oct. 7.—The tenth convention of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, opened in this city today, President W. D. Mahon of Detroit calling the body to order in Odd Fellows' hall. The roll call showed an attendance of about two hundred delegates from as far north as Winnipeg, from the Pacific coast and New England states, and from as far south as Galveston.
At the afternoon session President Mahon submitted his report covering the two years from September 1, 1905, to August 31, 1907. The figures contained in the report showed the affairs of the organization to be in good condition. During the period of two years seventy-seven new charters were granted and a net gain of over 6,000 was made in the membership.
Forty-nine divisions of the association increased their hours of labor during the past two years. There are now forty divisions working nine hours a day and sixty-six divisions that have secured a ten-hour workday. During the two years just ended 172 divisions secured an increase of wages, amounting in the aggregate to an increase of over $5,000,000 a year to the membership of the association.
There were eight cases of arbitration during the past year and seven of them were won by the association. During the term there were twenty-seven strikes, nineteen of which were settled satisfactorily to the association. In Canada the association secured the enactment of a law making it compulsory for center aisle through open and summer cars, thus protecting the employees from accidents due to the running boards. In Ohio the association has secured a law compelling the companies to heat the vestibules of cars in winter, and in Iowa a full vestibule law was obtained. During the past two years the association paid out $99,752.06 in sick and death benefits.

MICHIGAN PRIMARY LAW MAY BE CHANGED

Extra Session of Legislature Called by Governor Warner Who Wishes Law Changed.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Lansing, Mich., Oct. 7.—The Michigan legislature assembled in special session today pursuant to the call recently issued by Governor Warner. Several matters are to be given consideration by the session but by far the most important will be the renewal of the fight on the primary law relative to the elimination of the forty per cent provision. The present law provides that to secure the nominations for governor and lieutenant governor, the party candidates must secure forty per cent of the enrolled vote, otherwise the nominations revert to the state convention. It is on this that Governor Warner is making his fight, and it is generally conceded that his failure to carry his point will greatly lessen his chances of securing another nomination for the governorship. The governor takes the ground that it is just as fair and feasible to nominate state officers by plurality vote as it is to nominate congressmen and county officials.

BELOIT ASTIR OVER FIRE BUG'S LATE OPERATIONS

Another Attempt Was Made This Morning To Burn A Large Gasoline Tank--Explosion Averted By Fire Department.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beloit, Wis., Oct. 7.—Another attempt of the ubiquitous "fire bug" who is operating in this city was discovered at an early hour this morning when the fire department, in answer to a fire call, found a blaze around a forty-gallon gasoline tank. The fire had melted the hoops off from the tank and had burned the paint, but the discovery was made before the explosive contents had ignited. The city is all excited over the late discovery of an incendiary fire, it being the opinion of every one here that a "fire bug" with some deadly malice against the city is endeavoring to start a conflagration. The fire discovered this morning was in the rear of a grocery store in an alley mentioned by the prosecution in this case against Fire Chief Goss on charges of immoral conduct as being one of the alleyways in which he had not taken proper protective precautions against fire.
What might have been a serious blaze destroying the Beloit grain elevator of the Blodgett Milling Company, which was discovered just in time Saturday morning to prevent more than a minor loss. From general appearances the fire had evidently been set, as a large quantity of kerosene was found to have been used to soak portions of the corn crib which is seventy-five feet from the main building and which, if fairly started, would probably have destroyed both structures. The elevator is some forty odd years old and is used as a storehouse by the Blodgett Milling company. This is the last of a series of mysterious fires which have annoyed the Beloit fire department for weeks past and the fire insurance underwriters held a meeting today and offered a reward for the arrest and conviction of the fire bug.
Will Protest Will.
Seymour D. Perkins, one of the six children of the late Luther M. Perkins, will file a protest against the will left by his father. It is declared. Mr. Perkins was left $5 by his deceased father who had an estate of $12,000. He declares that his father was not capable of drawing a will at the time it was made, and will attempt to break the testament, which was filed in county court at Janesville last Saturday on these grounds.

Harry Pautsch Entered a Plea of Guilty to Charge of Signing Fred Boelke's Name to $20 Check.
At the corner of Milwaukee and River streets late Saturday afternoon Officer William Mason arrested a tall six-footer named Harry Pautsch on the charge of forging the signature of Fred Boelke, a town of Harmony farmer, to a check on the First National bank and cashing the same at Herman Huggs' saloon last Friday night. The arrest was made merely on a description of the man furnished by neighbors of Mr. Boelke, and on report that the individual in question had expressed an intention of going to Rockford, City Marshal Appleby had called up Chief Hargren and sent Mr. Huggs to the Forest City. The stranger proved to be the man wanted as a similar check for $3, filled out with the "Frank Brown" indorsement was found upon his person when an examination was made at the station. Mr. Huggs, returning to the city and visiting the station Saturday night, positively identified him. In municipal court this morning Pautsch said that he had recently worked in the vicinity of Sparta and that he had a father and two brothers living in Whitewater. The court sentenced him to one year in the state's prison at Waupun.

DUGAN CASE ON TRIAL TOMORROW

JURORS WILL WEIGH SORDID DETAILS OF A TRAGEDY.

ENACTED ON APRIL 18

George Schumaker, the Victim, May Possibly Be Brought Into the Court-Room.

In municipal court tomorrow morning District Attorney J. L. Fisher and Atty. W. G. Wheeler, counsel for the prosecution, and Atty. T. S. Nolan, representing the defense, will commence the examination of seventeen men summoned from the body of the county to qualify as jurors in the criminal action of the State vs. Florence Dugan. The original panel of thirty-six names was submitted according to law, by Sheriff L. D. Fisher, and the attorneys struck from the list for various reasons, all but the following: S. S. Bergholm of the town of Union, W. E. Shoemaker and E. P. Welch of the town of Janesville, Charles White of the town of Porter, Charles Clifford and William Smith of the town of Center, Alexander Paul of Milton Junction, Marvin Downing of Milton, William Miller and Edward James of the town of Rock, Don Van Wart, William Garde and Samuel Cutts of the city of Beloit, Dell Towns of the town of Magnolia, Lou Leflingwell of the town of Newark, and William Cooper of the town of Bradford. If the attorneys are unable to select a jury of twelve from this group of men, the sheriff will issue special summons for other electors in the county from time to time until the full quota is made up.

It will be a strange thing if twelve men who have no knowledge whatever of the tragedy which brought on this trial can be found within the borders of Rock county, though many are doubtless unfamiliar with the details and without prejudice in favor or against either of the two principals immediately concerned.

George Schumaker, a painter by trade, and Florence Dugan first met several years ago at Darien while the former was at work on a school-house. There are two accounts of the fatal duel which followed—one of a man enticed and lured by a woman who lured him with strong drink, took him riding in hired heavy rig, and dogged his footsteps wherever he thereafter turned; the other of a woman deceived under promise of marriage, systematically robbed of her small savings and beaten when the demands for money were not promptly satisfied, and finally sent aside for another and driven to madness by the ingratitude of the man who had loved. During the early part of last April the woman learned that the man was engaged to be married to a Miss Ella Smith, whom he met in Rome, Jefferson county, perhaps two years before. Schumaker, in a supposed desire to bring about the Smith family, had gone to the Smith farm near Sullivan on April 15 and asked for her hand in marriage. Meanwhile Florence Dugan, then employed at the Riverside hotel in this city, is supposed to have written a letter to Schumaker's fiancée, setting forth her own claims on him and warning the recipient that she would not permit the marriage. The message was seconded and its contents vigorously supported by a note from May Dickerson, another waitress at the Riverside hotel and a friend of Florence Dugan. During the next day or two the Dugan woman visited the district attorney and the sheriff to ascertain whether or not anything could be done. Miss Ella Smith received the letters and on Thursday, April 18, came here to Janesville. It was early in the evening of the same day that Florence Dugan is alleged to have lured that she was in the city with Schumaker and to have left her work at the hotel and gone in search of him.

Schumaker and Miss Smith were confronted by a woman near Podel's saloon on Academy street shortly after seven o'clock. The woman is alleged to have insisted on settling some matter than and there Schumaker is alleged to have replied that he had nothing to settle with her and to have roughly brushed her aside. The woman walked alongside and then back of the couple for a few steps and presently drew a 32-caliber revolver and fired one shot which entered the body of the man near the middle of the back. As he fell, according to spectators, who stopped in front of him and fired again and was about to pull the trigger a third time when Officers William Mason and Peter Lampton arrested on the scene and intervened. The Smith woman fainted and was conveyed to the hospital and remained at Schumaker's bedside throughout the night.

The wounds were such that it was not believed that Schumaker could survive. One of the bullets lodged in his backbone and pressure upon the spinal cord is said to have resulted in almost total paralysis of the lower portion of his body and to have caused the gangrene which set in at the base of the spine. The wound in the breast healed and the man still lives and may possibly be brought to the courtroom during the trial. The woman is said to have been charged of assault with intent to kill.

LINK AND PIN WAS WATCHMAN FOR ST. PAUL 12 YEARS

John Dalton Now in His Thirtieth Year of Service With Railroad As Watchman.

It was twelve years ago last Wednesday that John Dalton, the faithful watchman at the local St. Paul depot, began his duties as the daily guardian of the public from railroad accidents at the depot crossing. In the dozen years he has served the company he has lost about six days' time, an average of a day for every two years. He was out of the city to attend to the funeral of relatives on the six days (twelve years), he has been watching the crossings not a person has been killed by a train because of his fault. With this excellent record behind him he is now starting in on his thirtieth year of service. Besides having the record of not being responsible for any lost lives he has saved the wrecking of several trains coming into the local yards by being on hand to flag the approaching cars before a collision occurred. Many a Janesville driver can also thank Watchman Dalton because their carriages are today intact. An example of this trustworthy employee's watchfulness was evidenced this morning when he heard a train coming on the other side of a line of stationary cars and hastened to the end of the cars in time to prevent a bus from slipping onto the tracks. A serious accident in which one or more might have been killed was barely averted.

SIXTEEN HUNDRED AT THE BASEBALL GAME

Beloit Walloped Janesville 4 to 0 at Yost Park Yesterday—Third Post-Season Game ext Sunday

Over 1,600 spectators witnessed the second post-season baseball game between Janesville and Beloit "augmented" Trolley League teams at Yost park yesterday. Local fans were disposed to lay Janesville's defeat by the score of 4 to 0 to six costly errors equally divided between third baseman, Markel and shortstop Davis. However, the former Preempt pitcher who is signed for Detroit next season and was in the box for Beloit, was a riddle not very effectively solved by the locals. He struck out eight men and none of the runners got beyond second base. Theobald pitched a good game for Janesville and struck out four men. Another game is to be played next Sunday and Charles Conrad, president of the league, and Thomas Abbott, manager of the Janesville team, are going to Chicago tomorrow to get a new shortstop. Davis, who played the position yesterday, is a good batter and will not be retired from the line-up. He will take Fairman's position in center field and the latter will be placed on the bench. Tom Sullivan, former baseshortstop for Beloit, will succeed Markel at third base. The score by innings yesterday was as follows:

Beloit 1 0 0 1 0 0 2 0 4 7 0

GOETHE'S CLASSIC WELL PERFORMED

Presentation of "Faust" Well Received by Small Audiences at the Myers on Saturday.

Louis Morrison (the great Lewis Morrison is dead) and company opened their season in "Faust" at the Myers theatre Saturday afternoon and evening. The attendance was not large at either performance but those present were rewarded with an excellent performance of the classic allegory. Mr. Morrison in particular proving himself possessed of an adequate conception of the role of "Mephisto" as well as a fine reader of the first Miss Lillian Allen sang a splendid portrayal of the role of "Martha" and Miss Evelyn Russell was very good as "Marguerite". Lester Allen, who played the part of "Faust" has some pleasant mannerisms of speech, but is acceptable. Somehow or other this important role is always intrusted to some player who is just acceptable. The balance of the support was good. The play was well mounted and costumed.

Improving an Old Phrase.

An English instructor in a rather comprehensive talk to the wise young women referred to the period that extends "from the cradle to the grave." Then he stopped abruptly. "No," he went on, "that is an obsolete phrase. There are no more cradles and soon there will be no more graves. The modern form should be 'from the basket to the crematory.'"—New York Sun.

Beer and "Cop."

E. Fisher, who holds an off beer license in Rawlins street, Harrow, was fined 20s and costs for supplying a constable on duty with beer without an order from his superior officer. Fisher's defense was that he was drawing the beer for himself, and the constable had called in for a pie. He caused some astonishment when he added, "They often call in for a pie."—English Exchange.

The Hit of "The Man of the Hour."
No other play of American life produced in many years has made so great a hit as did "The Man of the Hour" on the occasion of its first performance in New York city on the night of Tuesday, December 6, 1906.
The play is still running there. The circumstances were unusual. Messrs.
William A. Brady and Joseph H. Grisemer, the producers of the play, did not prepare for it until the season was well under way, by which time every first-class theatre in New York city was occupied by a success, or else had been leased away ahead.
They got the play ready, and waited

"The Man of the Hour," acted by Messrs. Brady and Grismer's special company, will be given for the first time here in the Myers theatre, on Tuesday night, next.

Meredith Nicholson, author of "The House of a Thousand Candles," the dramatized version of which E. M.
Holland will present for its initial production in this city at the Myers theatre, on Wednesday, October 9, is still a young man, being quite considerably below forty.
In that comparatively short space of years he has had a varied experience, however, and has displayed a

For a New York opening. One was afforded them by the failure of a new play, "Sir Anthony," and they went into the Savoy Theatre there with "The Man of the Hour" with no boom-or advance heralding of any kind. As they afterward expressed it, they "simply opened the doors and let the public wander in." The public wandered in enough to fill the theatre the opening night. The next morning's newspapers were unanimous in saying that the play was the greatest success of the season, and their verdict was echoed by the afternoon papers, by the weeklies, by the monthlies, and at length by every publication of the day that takes note of the progress of theatricals. An example of how deep an impression the play made on all classes of playgoers was afforded in the fact that "Current Literature," in many respects the most conservative magazine in the United States, made an article on "The Man of the Hour," the feature of its May number.

versatility of great range. For three years after leaving college, Mr. Nicholson worked in printing offices, learned stenography, and read law for a couple of years in an office where nobody cared if he read poetry. At eighteen he took a prize offered by a leading magazine for the best short story. During all this time he managed to find enough spare moments to devote to the study of languages, with a tutor. He then went into the newspaper business, which occupied his attention for twelve years, becoming as a police reporter, and becoming in due course of time, an editorial writer and book reviewer.

At twenty-one Mr. Nicholson had written much verse and had already published a book of poems. Prior to his writing "The House of a Thousand Candles," his literary bent found production in two other novels, "The Main Chance," and "Zelda Dameron," and the writing of a social and critical history of Indiana entitled "The Hoosiers."

STRAUS ACTS TO KEEP OUT COOLIES

PATROL GUARD ESTABLISHED ON NORTH AND SOUTH BORDERS.

JAPS COME IN HORDES

Their Entrance Into the United States from Canada and Mexico Has Been Comparatively Easy.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Immigration of Japanese into America is increasing at so alarming a rate that it has been determined by the government to adopt extraordinary measures to prevent the introduction into the United States, not only of Japanese but of other Asiatic coolie laborers.

One result of the trip of Secretary Strauss of the department of commerce and labor along the Canadian border and the Pacific coast has been an increasing of the force of immigration inspectors along the Canadian border with a view to controlling if possible the flood of Asiatic immigration into America. The official figures of the immigration of Japanese into America are not available, because Secretary Strauss declines at this time to make them public; but it is known that more than twice as many Japanese have come into the United States this far in the year 1907 as came here during the same period last year.

Naturally, the figures of the government do not include the hundreds of Japanese who have come into the country surreptitiously. They have come across the Canadian and Mexican borders practically without hindrance, despite the regulations adopted by the government to prevent the introduction of Japanese laborers.

Easy for Japanese to Enter.
The government of Japan does not issue passports for laborers for America. It does, however, issue passports to them for the Hawaiian Islands and Canada. Once in the Hawaiian Islands, they take passage either to Mexico or to Canada and their way across the border line into this country from either is easy. They take train, for instance, from Mexico to Canada, through the United States.
The railroads are not bonded, as they are in the case of Chinese passengers, to deliver them at a specified destination. The result is that the Japanese leave the train at any point in the United States they may choose. They disappear and it practically is impossible to find them, even if they are known to have left the train, which is entirely unlikely.

Patrol Guard on the Border.
It is this sort of proposition the government proposes to combat. By the appointment of what practically constitutes a patrol guard of the northern and southern borders of the country, Secretary Strauss hopes to reduce the number of Asiatic, Japanese, Chinese and Hindus, who daily are coming across the borders in great and increasing numbers.

Returns from the Canadian Immigration office show that 8,256 Asiatics were landed at the British Columbian ports of Victoria and Vancouver between January 1 and September 18, 1907. Of this large number 2,872 were Hindus, and 4,811 were Japanese, most of the latter reaching Canada from Honolulu.

SHOWERED WITH MOLTEN METAL

Four Men Killed and Thirty Horribly Injured at Butler, Pa.

Butler, Pa., Oct. 7.—An explosion, caused by the upsetting of the metal pot in a cupola of the Standard Steel company here late Sunday night caused the death of four men, fatally injured 20 and seriously injured ten others. Nearly all the men were foremen.

The large wheel plant was demolished, causing a loss estimated at $100,000.
The condition of the 30 men injured is pitiable. Although still alive, the features of a majority are mutilated beyond recognition. The hot metal was showered over them causing horrible injuries.

You Are Sure to Be Correctly Dressed

Your suit if selected here is a guarantee that you have just the thing, from a style standpoint. Every suit shown is of that high character which meets the approval of critical women.
Buying of many styles but one of a kind gives one the same individuality, which it was formerly considered necessary to go to the cities to obtain. Every day express adds to the line and this week will be no exception, so if you have looked and not yet been suited, come in again next time you are down town. $15 to $50. Other lines offer new showings, viz.: Separate Skirts, Coats, Waists, Petticoats, in fact all lines for women's wear. The millinery department is like a "Pink Tea," something doing all the time. Jansville's best showing is here.

DIG FRAUD IS SCENTED.

Hartford Manufacturing Company Said to Have Cheated Government.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Postmaster General Meyer has suspended the payment of all moneys due from his department to the Hartford Manufacturing company of Hartford, Conn., and has submitted the matter to the attorney general for such further action as may be deemed proper. The Hartford Manufacturing company, up to July last, supplied the stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers sold at post offices. Chemical analyses of samples have disclosed the fact that the composition of the envelope paper has been below the requirements of the contract, and according to the computations of the experts of the post office department the company in the last four years has wrongfully benefited to the extent of about $425,000.

One of the manufacturers who supplied paper to the company has admitted to the postmaster general's agents that his firm furnished different and cheaper material than that specified in the contract and that it was so made at the instance of the Hartford Manufacturing company.

OUT OF AGONY, INTO HEAVEN

Ring at the phone:
Hello! Hello!
Is this Dr. Richards?
Yes, Well! I want to come right down to your office.
I'm suffering terribly with one of my teeth.
All right. I'll be there in a few minutes.
The patient and the Dr. meet shortly as per the above conversation over the phone and if you were present it wouldn't be long before you would hear a sigh of relief and the patient would say something like this:
"Why, what did you do? Dr. R."
The pain is all gone.
I haven't had such a relief from agony in the past 5 hours.
The Dr. knows what to do and how to do it, and in a way that makes you feel like you had suddenly burst out of that sulphurous place we read about into a heaven of bliss.
He saves you Pain.
He saves you teeth.
He saves you Money.

GO OVER ROUTE
FOR INTERURBAN

ANOTHER COMPANY IS LOOKING OVER THE PROSPECTS.

MORE PROMOTERS HERE

Field Is Now Open for Electric Road from This City to Madison Again.

That another company is investigating the Madison-Janesville Interurban proposition has been known for the past three months. H. H. Zigler of Columbus, Ohio, who represents a moneyed corporation making investments in Interurbans, has been in the city practically all the time since late in July. He has thoroughly investigated the situation and it is presumed has reported favorably on the project as this morning, accompanied by Thomas Jack of Ellettsburg, Kentucky, a wealthy coal mine owner and a member of the corporation, started in an automobile to go over the entire line to more thoroughly investigate the situation. The party left the Hotel Milton at half-past eleven, going to Milton and Milton Junction first, thence to Edgerton, Stoughton, McFarland, and around Lake Kegonsa and Lake Monona into Madison. They expect to return this evening, coming back by the river road. While neither gentlemen would say anything definite relative to their plans, it is surmised that if Mr. Jack makes a favorable report the work of surveying the route will begin this fall, the right-of-way be secured and actual construction begin in the spring. Just who the men who compose the latest company to enter the local Interurban field is not disclosed, but the same company have built several lines of road in Michigan within the past two years and are said to have unlimited capital for the construction of roads where good investments are seen. The presence of Mr. Zigler here for three months and the careful investigation he has made of the field tends to show that the line between this city and Madison is considered a paying one. Mr. Montgomery has withdrawn his application for a stub line to Stoughton, thus leaving the field free to other companies which might desire to enter the field. Aside from Mr. Zigler's company the Rockford & Interurban Company have talked of extending their line and H. H. Clough's proposed line is still in existence and has a franchise to operate in the city of Janesville and an option on the local city road. It is probable that one of these three companies will build a road inside of the next two years.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM A CHILLY BIER

"Capt." Edward J. Smith and Crew
Dumped into Icy Waters of Lake
Kegonsa by a Playful Billow Yesterday.

Only the timely aid of Robt. Bear, Hugh Hemingway, Charles Myhr, and Hiram Murdoch saved "Capt." Edward J. Smith and his gallant "crew" of the dinghy "Idle-Hour," from a watery grave in the icy waters of Lake Kegonsa yesterday. The crew consisted of Atty. Louis Avery and Al. Hayward and when, buffeted by the waves of the biggest sea seen on Kegonsa in forty years, they were near the home port, a terrible vessel carried the prow of the sturdy vessel clear up onto the dock. As the stern, obeying the laws of leverage, sunk beneath the lake's blue waves, Mr. Hayward who had been sitting there arose abruptly and started to utter a shrill cry. But the first notes of the prelude had scarcely reached the chattering gulls when the craft rolled over and dumped the three "jolly tars" into the bounding billows. There were no dry men's clothes in the dinghy and the articles of ladies' apparel were pressed into service and worn while the soggy coats, trousers, red neckties, and painted shirts were drying.

MANY LOCAL GROCERS
ARE OUT OF EGGS

Famine of "Hen Fruit" Bothers Dealers Who Cannot Supply Their Customers.

Has the good old hen deserted us? Apparently so from the present scarcity of eggs. If our friend, Mrs. Hen, does not get back into her good old form "hen and eggs" may go up a notch in price as well as egg drinks. It may be possible that the hen has interpreted the synonymous meaning of "egg" as the price of eggs today—and made her getaway for the tall unit. Several grocers were out of eggs last Friday and Saturday and were unable to supply their regular customers. The market is not burdened with "hen fruit" today and there is no telling when an abundant supply will be on hand unless some Chicago university professor develops a method of "manufacturing" this staple food product. One of the hotels of the city has been unable to secure any eggs for the past three days and the menus of many homes today are lacking the favorite egg dishes because of the scarcity of eggs among the local dealers. A few grocers have been able to furnish their customers with eggs which they have secured from out of town commission merchants who have a supply of cold storage eggs on hand.

Drinking Water for the Study.
A useful article in a study is a small filter for drinking water, which should be filled and run off every day. People are often covered with hard water and when the appetite languishes in warm weather and they are pressed for time they can take a glass of cold water with a little lemon juice squeezed into it and find it most refreshing; when nothing else will tempt them.

A Busy Woman.
Many years ago a visitor to the home of the Hitt family at Mount Morris, Ill., found Mrs. Hitt quite busy. She was holding a child in her lap, she was rocking the baby in the cradle, she was knitting, and she was reading a newspaper folded over the back of a chair. The visitor remarked that the son of such a woman ought to have a good record. The late Robert H. Hitt, the congressman from Illinois, was one of the boys.

"STATE BANKS"

In Wisconsin are safer than National Banks" is a statement made by a former deputy state bank examiner of Wisconsin. His reason for this statement is that more time and care are given to the examination of state banks. The state bank examiners are paid salaries, while the national bank examiners get so much for each examination, or the latter naturally try to get through their work as quickly as possible, while the state examiners take all the time needed for a thorough examination. The deputy examiner also states, "The Wisconsin banking laws, in my opinion, are the best of any state in the union."
We are a Wisconsin state bank and we are confident that with our ample resources and superior facilities we can offer you safe and convenient banking accommodations.

CAPITAL AND SURPLUS

There is a difference between Capital and Surplus. The national banking law provides that the stockholders in a National bank shall be liable for twice the amount of their stock. No such liability attaches to surplus. It therefore follows that the same amount of money is twice as valuable to the depositor in the capital account as in the surplus. This also explains the provision of the law which makes it obligatory for a National bank in a town of this size to have a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, and to immediately accumulate a surplus of twenty per cent of its capital.

Every person who is able to work—no matter what his or her calling, should start a bank account at the earliest opportunity. "And Jessop?"
"He turned up and explained that he had been frightened on finding the woman dead. But the police found him on his craft at Southampton, and he gave evidence. He said that Krill when drunk and like a demon, as Mrs. Krill told you, had left the room several times. The last time he came back, he and the skipper had a final drink, and then Jessop retired to find the body. It was supposed by the police that Krill had killed Lady Rachel for the sake of the brooch, which could not be discovered."
"But the brooch?"
"Hold on. I know what you are about to say. We'll come to that shortly. Let me finish this yarn first. It was also argued that, from Lady Rachel's last words to her father and from the position of the body—fled by the neck, to the bedpost—who had committed suicide, Mrs. Krill, as I said, declared the deceased lady never mentioned the idea of making away with herself. However, Krill's flight and the chance that, being drunk, he might have strangled the lady for the sake of the brooch while out of the room, made many think he was the culprit, especially as Jessop said that Krill had noticed the brooch and commented on the opals.

"He was a traveler in Jewels once, according to his wife."
"Yes, and left that to turn hunkeeper. Afterward he vanished, as I say, and became a pawnbroker in Gwynne street. Well, the jury at the inquest could not agree. Some thought Lady Rachel had committed suicide and others that Krill had murdered her. Then the family didn't want a scandal, so in one way and another the matter was hushed up. The jury brought in a verdict of suicide by a majority of one, so you can see how equally they were divided. Lady Rachel's body was laid in the family vault, and nothing more was heard of Lemuel Krill."
"What did Mrs. Krill do?"
"She stopped on at the inn, as she told you. People were sorry for her and helped her, so she did very well. Mother and daughter have lived at the Red Pig all these years, highly respected, until they saw the handbills about Krill. Then the money was claimed, but as the circumstances of Lady Rachel's fate was so old nobody thought of mentioning it till this young lord did so to you, and I, as you see, have hunted out the details."

"What is your opinion, Hurd?" asked Paul, deeply interested.
"Oh, I think Krill murdered the woman and then cut to London. That accounts for his looking over his shoulder."
"But how did he get money to start as a bookseller? Premises are not leased in Gwynne street for nothing."
"Well, he might have got money on the brooch."

"No. The brooch was pawned by a nautical gentleman," Paul started up.
"Captain Jessop, perhaps. You remember?" he said excitedly.
"Ah," said Hurd, puffing his pipe with satisfaction. "I see you understand. I mentioned that about the brooch to hear what you would say. Yes, Jessop must have pawned the brooch at Stowley, and it must have been Jessop who came with the note for the jewels to Paul."

"Ila," said Paul, walking excitedly about the room. "Then it would seem that Jessop and Krill were in league?"
"I think so," said Hurd, staring at the fire, "and yet I am not sure. Jessop may have found that Krill had killed the woman and then have made him give up the brooch, which he afterwards pawned at Stowley, though why he should go near Mrs. Krill's old home I can't understand."

"Is Stowley near her old home?"
"Yes—in Buckinghamshire. However, after pawning the brooch I expect Jessop lost sight of Krill till he must have come across him a few days before the crime. Then he must have made Krill sign the paper ordering the jewels to be given up by Paul so that he might get money."

"A kind of blackmail, in fact."
"Well," said Hurd doubtfully, "after all, Jessop might have killed Krill himself."

"But how did Jessop get the brooch?"
"Ah, that I can't tell you, unless Norman himself picked it up in the street. We must find these things out. I'm going to Christchurch to make inquiries. I'll let you know what I discover," and Hurd rose.

"One minute," said Paul hastily. "Do you think Miss Krill is the dead man's child?"
"Of course. She's as like her mother as two peas. Why do you ask?"

"Paul detailed what Sylvia and Deborah had said. 'So if she is over thirty,' said Jessop, 'she can't be Krill's child or else she must have been born before Krill married his wife. In either case, she has no right to the money.'"

"It's strange," said Hurd musingly. "I'll have to look into that. Meanwhile, I've got plenty to do."

"There's another thing I have to say."
"You'll confuse me, Jessop. What is it?"

"The sugar and that hawker," and Paul pointed what Sylvia had said about the hawker. Hurd sat down and stared. "That must be hawker," he said, looking at the novel, "and yet it's a mighty queer. I say," he took the three volumes, "will you lend me these?"

"Yes, be careful. They are not mine."
"I'll be careful. But I can't dip into them just yet, nor can I go into the London business, let alone this age of Mrs. Krill. The first thing I have to do is to go to Christchurch and see—"

"And see if Mrs. Krill was at home on the night of the 6th of July."

Hurd started. "Oh," said he dryly, "the night the crime was committed, you mean? Well, I didn't intend to look up that point, as I do not see how Mrs. Krill can be implicated. However, I'll take a note of that, and this he did and then continued: "But I'm anxious to find Jessop. I shouldn't be at all surprised to learn that he committed the double crime."

"The double crime?"
"Yes. He might have strangled Lady Rachel and twenty years later have killed Krill. I can't be sure, but I think he is the guilty person."

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE next afternoon Hurd was on his way to the former abode of Mrs. Krill. During the journey he glanced at his notes and arranged what inquiries he should make. It struck him as strange that Mrs. Krill should have told Paul of her association with the Red Pig, considering the reputation of the place in connection with Lady Rachel's murder or suicide. It would have been better had Mrs. Krill changed her name by letters patent and started a new life on her dead husband's money. The detective could not understand the reason for this unnecessary frankness.

Before leaving town he took the precaution to call on Paul and note down a description of the sailor—presumably Jessop—who had tried to obtain possession of the jewels on the morning after the crime had been committed in Gwynne street. He learned that the man (who had given no name) was tall and stout, with the flushed skin of a habitual drinker of strong waters and reddish hair mixed with gray. He also had a scar running from his right temple to his mouth, and although this was partly concealed by a beard, yet it was distinctly visible. The man was dressed in blue serge, carried his large hands slightly clenched and rolled in his gait. Hurd noted these things down and had little doubt that he would recognize the man if he came across him. Connecting him with the individual who had pawned the brooch at Stowley, Hurd fancied he might be Jessop. He resolved to look for him in Southampton, as, judging from the evidence given at the inquest on Lady Rachel's remains, that was the port of call for the hawker.

At the station immediately before that of Christchurch, Hurd glanced at a telegram which he produced out of his pocketbook and then leaned out of his carriage window. A pretty, daintily dressed little woman was him and at once entered the carriage with a gay laugh. She was Miss Aurora Qian, and Paul would have been considerably astonished had he overheard her conversation with Mr. Hurd. But the detective and the actress had the compartment to themselves and talked freely.

"It's the safest place to talk in," explained Miss Qian, producing a bag of chocolate and eating during the conversation. "Of course, I told the landlady at the Red Pig that my brother was coming down, so you can go there right enough. But walls have ears. I don't think railway carriages have, though, and we have much to say, Billy."

"Have you found out anything, Aurora?" asked Hurd.

Miss Qian nodded. "A great deal considering I have been in the place only twenty-four hours. It's a good thing I'm out of an engagement, Billy, or I shouldn't have time to leave London or to look after that man Hay. I am a good sister."

"Well, you are. But there's money in the business also. If I can get that thousand pounds, you'll have your share."

"I know you'll treat me straight, Billy," said the actress, with much satisfaction. "I always say that my brother is as square a man as I know."

"The deuce you do," said Hurd, rather vexed. "I hope you don't go telling every one that I am your brother, Aurora?"

"Only one or two special friends—not Hay, you may be sure. Nor does that nice Mr. Beecot know that we are brother and sister."

"You'd best keep it dark and say nothing, Aurora. It's just as well you left the private detective business and went on the stage. You talk too much."

"Oh, no, I don't," retorted Miss Qian, eating a sweet. "Don't be hasty, Billy, or I'll tell you nothing."

Her brother shrugged his shoulders. He was very fond of Aurora, but he saw her many faults, and she certainly had too long a tongue for one engaged in private matters. "What about Hay?" he asked.

Aurora raised her eyes. "I thought you wanted to know of my discoveries at Christchurch," she said, pointing.

"Well, I do. But Hay?"

"Oh, he's all right. He's going to marry Miss Krill and her money and is getting each together by fleeing young Samdell. That fool will play and keeps losing his money, although I've warned him."

"Then don't warn him. I wish to catch Hay redhanded."

"Ah," Miss Qian nodded, "you may catch him redhanded in a worse matter than gambling."

"Aurora, you don't mean to say he has anything to do with the murder of Aaron Norman?"

"Well, I don't go so far as to say that, Billy. But when I got settled in the private sitting room of the Red Pig on the plan that I had come down for a change of air and expected my brother—"

"Which you do without any lies."

"Yes, that's all right, Billy," she said impatiently. "Well, the first thing I clapped eyes on was a portrait of Gresham Hall in a silver frame on the mantelpiece."

"Hm," said Hurd, nursing his chin in his hand, "he may have given that to Miss Krill during the engagement."

"I dare say," rejoined the actress tartly, "for he has been engaged for many a long day—say two years."

"I thought so," said Hurd triumphantly. "I always fancied the meeting in Paul's office was a got up thing."

"What made you think so?"

"Because, when I overheard Hay address Miss Krill as Maud, and the first time she and her mother came to his rooms, Samdell was there, and gambling went on as usual. I lost money myself," said Hurd, with a grimace, "in order to make Hay think I was another pigeon to pluck. But the mention of the Christian name on so short an acquaintance showed me that Hay and Miss Krill had met before. I expect the meeting in Paul's office was a got up game."

"You said that before, Billy. How you repeat yourself! Yes, there's an inscription on the portrait—'From Gresham to Maud, with much love. Sweet, but it's when you think what an idiot the man is! There is also a date. Two years ago the photograph was given. I admired the photograph and asked the landlady who was the swell.'"

"What's the landlady's name?"

"Matilda Junk."

Hurd almost jumped from his seat. "That's queer," he said. "The woman who is devoted to Miss Norman and who nursed her since she was a baby is called Deborah Junk."

"I know that," said Aurora. "I'm not quite a fool, Billy. I mentioned Deborah Junk, whom I saw at the inquest on Norman's body. The landlady said she was her sister, but she had not heard of her for ages. And this Matilda is just like Deborah in looks—a large Dutch doll with bony eyes and a badly painted face."

"Well, that's a point," said Hurd, making a note. "What did she say about the photograph?"

"Oh, that it was one of Mr. Hay, who was Miss Krill's young man, and that they had been engaged for two years."

"Matilda seems to be a chatterbox."

"She is. I got a lot out of her."

"Then there can be nothing to connect the case of Mrs. Krill?"

WATERWAY BOOM GOES TO CONGRESS

MEMPHIS CONVENTION URGES DEFINITE ACTION ON PLAN.

TEXT OF RESOLUTIONS

Meeting of Association in 1908 to Be Held in Chicago—John I. Vance Collapses After Speaking.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 7.—After passing resolutions endorsing the ship channel project and calling upon congress for an appropriation sufficient to secure a 14-foot canal from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico through the route already selected by army engineers, the deep waterway convention adjourned Saturday afternoon.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Chicago. Representatives of New Orleans, who have been conducting a vigorous campaign, withdrew the name of that city in favor of Chicago, and the latter city was selected by acclamation. It is generally understood that an agreement was reached whereby New Orleans will have the convention in 1909.

Resolutions Indorse Project.

The report of the resolutions committee, which was adopted unanimously, was in part as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that deepening of the waterways from the lakes to the gulf is a public necessity, and that it is a national and imperative duty to take definite and immediate action to deepen said waterways to a depth of 14 feet from the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, through the route already selected by the army engineers, with all possible speed.

"That we respectfully ask that said work be constructed according to the continuing contract system.

"That William K. Kavanaugh, president of the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterways association, be empowered to appoint a committee composed of 50 members to present these resolutions to the next congress of the United States and also to use all honorable and proper means as the representative of and in connection with this association to induce congress to act favorably thereon at the next session."

The resolutions also contained expressions of thanks "to co-laborers in the great work of waterways improvement," and especially to President Roosevelt and the governors who lent their aid to the success of the convention.

Speaker Collapses at Convention.

A dramatic incident marked the morning session of the convention when John I. Vance of Columbus, O., president of the Ohio River Improvement association, collapsed shortly after finishing a speech.

He was immediately removed to the temporary emergency hospital, established at convention headquarters, and medical aid was sought. The physician at first reported Mr. Vance's condition serious, but later he revived, and it is believed all danger is past.

NEGRO MURDERER LYNCHED BY A MOB

CITIZENS OF CUMBERLAND, MD., METE OUT SWIFT JUSTICE.

JAIL DOOR BATTERED IN

Colored Desperado Who Had Slain a Popular Policeman Is Shot and Kicked to Death by the Crowd.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 7.—William Burns (colored), who fatally shot Policeman August Hunter Thursday night, was taken from the jail early Sunday morning by a mob and shot and kicked to death.

This was the first lynching in the history of Cumberland, and it is condemned by two of the citizens.

The shooting of Policeman Hunter by Burns, who was a desperado, while the latter was resisting arrest, created a great deal of excitement, owing to the excellent reputation of the officer and his well-known kindly disposition. His death on Saturday morning was followed by threats against the negro, these coming as much from those of his own race as from the whites. Few, however, seem to have thought a lynching possible and the police paid no attention to the rumors that were afloat.

Only One Man on Guard.

Only Deputy Sheriff Adam Pendley was at the jail when, after midnight, a crowd of fewer than a hundred men, some of whom were disguised in one way or another, appeared and demanded the keys. These being refused, a telegraph pole was used as a battering ram and entrance to the building was forced. Other negroes in neighboring cells were careful to guide the lynchers to that of Burns, and here again the battering ram was used.

The lynchers found their victim crouched behind his cot, and seizing him by the feet, they dragged him downstairs and into the street, where, within a few yards of the entrance to the jail, Burns was kicked and shot to death.

Minister Tries to Save Him.

Rev. W. Cleveland Hicks, an Episcopalian clergyman, did his best to save the negro, and afterwards protected the body until the arrival upon the scene of Judge A. Hunter Boyd and the police.

Judge Boyd called on the crowd to disperse, and in this was promptly obeyed. The body was removed to an undertaking establishment, and 10,000 persons are estimated to have viewed it Sunday.

MACLEAN'S RELEASE IS NEAR.

British Government Has Accepted Dandit Ransoll's Reduced Terms.

Tangier, Oct. 7.—The release of Caid Sir Henry MacLean, who for some time has been held captive by the bandit Ransoll, at last seems to be within measurable distance. It was stated Sunday, on the best possible authority, that the British government had accepted Ransoll's reduced terms for MacLean's release, the principal items being $150,000 ransom and British protection for Ransoll and his family. Great Britain's advance of the ransom will be guaranteed by Sultan Abd-El-Aziz.

Sir Henry MacLean's brother is now at Rabat bringing the negotiations with the sultan to a close.

Dr. and Mrs. Rowland Acquitted.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 7.—The jury in the Rowland murder trial at 9:30 Sunday morning returned a verdict of acquittal, with a very few people in the courtroom at the time. Dr. and Mrs. David Rowland were charged with poisoning the woman's former husband, Charles H. Strange.

Proposals Not Plentiful.

It is a popular fallacy that proposals grow like fruit on the Santa Claus tree, merely waiting for us to put out our hands and pluck one. But the young woman who has worked like a stoker in the social engine from 9 in the morning until 12 at night to attain a house, a carriage, a husband, and a baby, could tell Laura Jean Libby and others a different tale.—Helen Rowland's "Digressions of Polly."
